Dear EUSTORY prize winners,

Congratulations on your winning entry in one of EUSTORY's national history competitions! Or, in case you are one of our EUSTORY alumni – welcome back! By participating in a research-based history competition, you have made a huge contribution to the EUSTORY belief that history really matters and that there is no age-limit to research history to understand the world around us.

Just like you, more than 200,000 young Europeans have looked for traces of the past in their local and family history since the foundation of EUSTORY in 2001.

The EUSTORY Next Generation Summit 2018 will give you the unique opportunity to get together with enthusiastic history pathfinders from all over Europe. Travel to Berlin and experience how history, which is often used as a weapon, can serve as a tool for open dialogue across borders.

Share your personal perspectives, learn more about history and how it is perceived by young people from about 30 different countries and make new friends.

I'm looking forward to your application and hope to see you in Berlin!

Kind regards

Katja Fausser
EUSTORY Managing Director

Körper-Stiftung: Through its operational projects, in its networks and in conjunction with co-operation partners, the Körper Foundation takes on current social challenges in fields of action comprising innovation, international dialogue and living civil society. Inaugurated in 1959 by the entrepreneur and initiator Kurt A. Körper, the foundation is now nationally and internationally active from its sites in Hamburg and Berlin.

EUSTORY is an informal history network of non-governmental organisations carrying out research-based history competitions to encourage young Europeans to take an independent and critical look on history. The EUSTORY network was initiated by the Körper Foundation in Germany. Since EUSTORY’s foundation in 2001 it has been connecting civic organisations from over 20 countries.

DVV International in cooperation with the Körper Foundation conducts in 2017/18 the project “History Competitions in Belarus, Georgia, Moldova and Ukraine”, which is funded by the German Foreign Ministry. Prize winners of this initiative will participate in the Summit. DVV International is the Institute for International Cooperation of the Deutscher Volkshochschul-Verband e.V. (DVV), the German Adult Education Association and supports lifelong learning world-wide.

The opening event is organised in cooperation with the international youth meeting “Youth for Peace” initiated by the Franco-German Youth Office (FGYO/DFJW/OFAJ) together with various partners. On the commemoration of the centenary of the end of the First World War they will bring together 500 youth and young adults from Europe and beyond in Berlin from November 14 to 18, 2018 under the patronage of the German Foreign Ministry and the French Mission du Centenaire.

The iconic year of 2018 brings about many historic occasions to reflect the history of war and peace in Europe: It has been, for example, 10 years since the declaration of independence of Kosovo and the Georgian-Russian armed conflict, 50 years since the Prague Spring and the students' movements in Europe, 100 years since the end of World War I and 400 years since the beginning of the Thirty Years' War.

From 14 to 19 November 2018, the Körber Foundation together with its partners organises this year's EUSTORY Next Generation Summit in Berlin to focus on the processes of making, negotiating and maintaining peace in Europe.

Join the EUSTORY Summit and dive into history together with 120 young Europeans as well as experts from the field of academia, journalism, education and arts. Share your perspectives on the past and experience that history can not only divide us, but can also serve as a starting point for international understanding.

Lessons from the Past for Today's Peace Diplomacy

Use past experiences of peace-making in quest of finding potential tools for solving present conflicts.

1 How to End a War? (Re)negotiating the Paris Peace Treaties of 1918/19

The First World War ended 100 years ago. Yet, the Armistice of Compiègne, signed in November 1918, marked only the beginning of the following peace negotiations in Paris. The agreements shaped the 20th century and the continent as a whole. Imagine you had been one of the diplomats negotiating this peace: How would you have represented your countries' national interests to end the war?

Dive into the role of a diplomat of one European country and become part of a simulated Paris Peace Conference. You will be assigned a country and learn about its interests and aims concerning the conditions for peace. In the negotiations, you as a diplomat will defend "your" country's position on cession of territory, the setting of national borders, disarmament and war guilt. Thus, you can not only deepen your historical knowledge on the topic but also have the chance to write history anew: with the historical insights of what was about to come in the 20th century, what would you as a diplomat have done differently? Find out and re-negotiate the Paris Peace Treaties! To look ahead, we will discuss your visions for the European continent and shed light on your perspective on how to assure peace in Europe.

You want to understand the seminal catastrophe of the 20th century and learn practical things about debating and conducting negotiations, holding press conferences and interviews? Join this workshop!

2 The Art of Remembrance

Coping with the Legacy of Perpetrators in History

With each passing day, we have less and less of a connection to what came before us. History needs to be re-narrated consistently if we want to save it from oblivion. The legacy of perpetrators in history is an issue that requires particular attention and responsibility from all of us. How can we use creative expression as a means to reconnect with history?

In this workshop, we will make use of the methodology “New Forms of Remembrance”, a practice using provocative, charged locations to inspire our work, find new creative ways of commemoration in order to give the next generation a chance to understand history and their place in it. We will visit the house of the Wannsee Conference, where on 20 January 1942, fifteen high-ranking Nazi officials met to discuss their plan to deport and murder European Jews. We will use this as a starting point to dive into questions of guilt and the legacies of perpetrators: Are only those guilty who wield the guns? How responsible are the perpetrators of the pen? Where in your country do these questions arise? Through a series of writing and performance exercises, we will try to expose our emotions and express the complex nature of guilt, responsibility, war and peace, resistance, reconciliation and remembrance to create short performances that use the spoken word as a tool for giving space to individual remembrance.

Join this workshop and take the opportunity to express yourself creatively and use your voice to find new forms of remembrance.

Workshop Leader:
Dan Wolf

Participants:
up to 15

Dan Wolf is a performance artist who crosses artistic and cultural borders to combine conventional theatre styles with the themes, language, music, history and aesthetics of the Hip-Hop generation. This workshop uses the methodology of the concept “Sound in the Silence” developed by Dan Wolf and supported by the MOTTE (Hamburg) and European Network Remembrance and Solidarity (Warsaw).

3 Restitution of Art

Finding Fair and Just Solutions

A work of art disappears in times of war. Years later, dedicated researchers find out that combatants of a former war party stole the artwork; it was sold several times since then and is now exhibited in the country's national art museum. Morally perhaps a clear-cut case, but legally inconclusive: Whose art is it?

Twenty years ago, in 1998, more than 40 countries and many international non-governmental organisations agreed on the “Washington Principles”, which form the moral and political bases for restitutions in the case of Nazi confiscated art. Can this attempt to right historical wrongs ensure a more peaceful and respectful present? You will explore the history of artworks in museums and of their previous owners. Here, provenance research, which deals with the origins and “paths” of artworks, is essential. In this workshop, you will acquire insights into the toolkit of a provenance researcher. On an excursion, you will then step into actual provenance research at a museum of the “Prussian Cultural Heritage Foundation” in Berlin. In small groups, you will develop a media project that reflects your view on the matter: The ideas from this workshop will contribute to and be presented at the international conference “20 Years Washington Principles – A Roadmap for the Future” on November 27, 2018.

If you want to uncover the traces of historical artworks and discuss the meaning, challenges and moral impacts of reconciliation by the means of seeking fair and just solutions, you should join this workshop.

4 Disturbing the Peace? Meeting Individuals Who Made a Difference

Can a single person influence the course of history in times of international integration and globalisation? Personal histories of civic activism in the 20th and 21st century show that the individual still can make a difference. But they also raise the question to what extent it is justified or even necessary to break the rules or a would-be peace to stand up for your values and beliefs?

Take the chance to engage in intensive cross-generational encounters with civic activists from different European countries and historical contexts. You will be introduced to the methodology of oral history and will have the opportunity to prepare and conduct professional interviews with civic activists from various age groups. As individuals, they decided to challenge an existing situation at some point. Which lessons can we learn from their different experiences of self-assertion in European history? Where in your family, region or country can you find examples of people who raised their voices to bring about change? And what is it you want to improve today? All your experiences and debates will be collected and brought together in an immersive stage production.

If you want to challenge the common understanding of peace and like to question contemporary European history and its legacies for your personal engagement today: This is your workshop!

Form of Workshop:
Oral History

Workshop Leader:
Frank Reiniger

Participants:
up to 15

Frank Reiniger is a German historian and pedagogue. He has been working in the field of historical-political youth education for 20 years and deals with general questions of the mediation of history. He attaches a special meaning to the so-called oral history. The conception, planning and implementation of international youth projects is another focus of his work.

5 War and Peace Cast in Stone

Analysing and Creating Memorials

History is on every street corner: Monuments and memorial sites shape cities and public remembrance all over Europe. They are closely connected with the experiences from the past and are meant to keep certain memories alive. But are they truly ‘set in stone’ or does their meaning change over time?

This bilingual English-Russian workshop focuses on the role and history of memorials in the cultures of remembrance all over Europe. You will meet experts working with memorials from the past and the present in Berlin: They focus also on those memorials which have been abandoned and demolished at various points in the past. These discarded memorials are part of the exhibition “Unveiled – Berlin and its Monuments” at the Zitadelle Berlin, which you are going to visit. By exploring a memorial from this exhibition and one from your hometown or region, you will discover the origin stories of these monuments, analyse their forms and designs, decode their messages, place them in their historical contexts and critically discuss their relation to and relevance for the present. Finally, together with the other participants from this workshop, you will get to create your own message for the future in the shape of a memorial, which will become part of exhibitions at the Zitadelle Spandau, Berlin.

If you want to deepen your knowledge about the visual language of remembrance in Europe and leave behind your own message in form of a memorial, this workshop is for you!

6 Write Your Own History

Finding Stories and Writing Grass-Root History

Do you sometimes have the impression that history only happens in big politics and that the experiences of people, families and regions are overlooked? In this workshop, you will become a historical detective, put your ear to the ground to find the stories and histories of Europeans and make their voices heard.

In this workshop you will get the chance to find out how historical events affected people from all over Europe and are still influencing the young generation of today. You will receive professional journalistic coaching in the journalistic skills of research techniques and in arranging and presenting your findings in a text or an audio format. By conducting interviews with interesting persons, you will gather information, learn about the relevant historical events and arrange them in a journalistic piece. The young Editors' Team of the History Campus will be a part of this workshop, which will give you the opportunity to get "backstage" insights into the History Campus blog. The texts and audio formats produced in this workshop can be published on the History Campus blog.

Are you interested in journalistic work? Join this workshop if you want to acquire and expand your journalistic skill set, seek out the personal stories of young Europeans and give grass-roots history a voice.

7 Peace of Westphalia 1648

Lessons from the Past for Today's Peace Diplomacy

Why should we look at a conflict from the 17th century to solve some of today's conflicts? Are there really parallels between the Thirty Years' War and contemporary conflicts? Can we learn from history and if so, which lessons can we draw and where are the limits?

In this workshop you will deal with the Peace of Westphalia, which in 1648 ended the Thirty Years' War in central Europe. We will use it as a specific historical experience but also as an analytical tool to understand and shed a new light on the roots of current conflicts and political rivalries. Can historical research on "Westphalia" provide a creative approach to resolve or at least to gain a better understanding of longstanding conflicts? Can you think of an event or conflict from your own background or experience, which shows similar historical roots or striking historical parallels? You will get the chance to meet experts and scholars who have been working on taking this new path and reinvent the Peace of Westphalia. Explorative learning is an open and dynamic methodology and the participants will have the chance to work with history off the beaten paths and with a clear perspective on the present.

If you want to be a part of this experimental approach to history and politics, reflect on and discuss how history can be a source of inspiration for the present, you should join this workshop.

Form of Workshop:

How to Apply for the Summit

STEP 1

Read this Summit brochure carefully. Be aware that in the run-up to the Summit you need about 5-6 weeks of preparation time ahead of the Summit on the History Campus platform.

STEP 2

If you are under 18 years old, please print the "Declaration of Consent" at the end of this brochure. Complete this form and ask your parents to sign it and prepare a scan for a later upload.

STEP 3

Start your online application on historycampus.org/summit2018 and fill in the form carefully. Since you have to give detailed information and write longer texts, make sure you allow enough time for your application.

Choose as many workshops that interest you during the application process. Keep in mind that you will attend only one of them and this workshop will last for the entire duration of the Summit.

Together with the workshop partners, the Summit Team will select the best fitting candidates. How well you scored in your competition and your language proficiency are just as important as your motivation.

Within two weeks after the deadline of your application you will be notified via email whether your application was successful or not. If you have been selected, you then have to confirm or withdraw your participation within one week.

FAQs

How do I prepare for the Summit? Do I have to bring something special?

Your workshop leader will get in touch with you prior to the Summit (around September/October). Together with the other participants and your workshop team, you will communicate regularly in your secure and closed virtual classroom on the History Campus (www.historycampus.org). You will be asked to work on selected materials on your workshop topic, conduct some research in your home country or to bring other materials or equipment to Berlin in November.

Is a barrier-free access to the Summit possible?

Yes, the Hostel is barrier-free (jgh-hauptbahnhof.de/en/barrier-free) and the venue (Alte Börse Marzahn) has barrier-free workshop spaces, communal areas and facilities. Please get in touch with us so we can make sure that your workshop will be located in these rooms. If you need special assistance during the Summit or on your journey to and from Berlin, please specify your needs during the online application process.

Am I covered by insurance during the Summit?

The organisers will book and cover medical travel insurance for all non-German participants of the Summit. Additionally, we recommend all participants to take out insurances like liability protection, casualty insurance and a theft liability waiver for their luggage individually.

I have specific dietary needs. Will this be considered in the planning of the catering?

Yes, if your application was successful, you will have the opportunity to specify your dietary needs during the confirmation process and the Summit Team will take care of your wishes. Should this not be possible, we will get in touch and find a solution together with you!

What happens if I confirmed my participation but I am not able to attend the Summit after all?

The confirmation of your participation in the Summit is binding. Thus, your attendance is obligatory. Since we cover the costs of the organisation of the Summit, of your accommodation, food and international travels, you are counted in for the programme. A later cancellation is only possible under certain circumstances and we reserve the right to charge you with a cancellation fee if we cannot fill your space.

Terms and Conditions

EUSTORY Next Generation Summit 2018 (14-19 Nov 2018 in Berlin)

General Remarks

It is very important that you carefully check in advance that you really will be able to take part in the EUSTORY Next Generation Summit 2018. The event might interfere with school or university schedules. Should you require assistance to obtain leave from school or university, you may ask the Summit Team ([eustory\[at\]koerber-stiftung.de](mailto:eustory[at]koerber-stiftung.de)) to issue a request to the principal of your school or university. Applicants who have not reached the age of 18 at the time of the Summit may only apply with the legal consent of a parent or legal guardian: The signed »Declaration of Consent for the Participation of Minors« must be submitted online during the application process.

Costs and Travel Arrangements

Participation in the EUSTORY Next Generation Summit 2018 is mostly free of charge. If you are selected and confirmed as a participant, the Summit Team will organise and cover the costs of your food and accommodation in Berlin and catering from 14-19 November 2018. If you are living in Germany, the organisers cannot cover your travel costs, although no-one will be excluded for financial reasons. Please arrange your journey to and from Berlin individually, taking low-fare train or coach tickets into account. If you are living in another European country, the Summit Team will contact you to arrange the details of your itinerary to and from Berlin together with you. The organisers will book and cover the costs of your travel between your nearest national airport/train station with a possible direct connection to Berlin and the Summit location only. Individual arrangements are possible to secure that all accepted participants will be able to attend the event.

Visa

If you require a visa for Germany, make sure to apply for it as soon as possible. The Körber Foundation will cover the cost for your visa. Please contact the Summit Team ([eustory\[at\]koerber-stiftung.de](mailto:eustory[at]koerber-stiftung.de)).

Accommodation and Catering

Participants will be accommodated in a youth hostel in gender-separated dormitories. They are usually sharing rooms with people of other nationalities. For the whole event, safety and security are top priorities. The Summit Team supervises the participants during the day and stays with the group at night. However, there are no security checks during the night.

Insurance

The Körber Foundation will book and cover medical travel insurance for all non-German participants of the Summit. Additionally, we recommend all participants to take out insurances like liability protection, casualty insurance and theft liability waiver for their luggage individually.

No Legal Right to Participation

Unfortunately, it will not be possible to invite all applicants. Even after an invitation has been issued it may occur that a workshop has to be cancelled due to illness or a force majeure. Due to restrictions of the number of participants, it is not always possible to offer the workshop of first priority.

Terms and Conditions

EUSTORY Next Generation Summit 2018 (14-19 Nov 2018 in Berlin)

Withdrawal from Participation

Pedagogical projects like the EUSTORY Summit are expensive (honoraria, preparation, travel costs, lodging, meals etc.) and costs do arise even when a participant withdraws. Therefore, the following rule applies: after having received an invitation for the Summit, the invited candidate can decline within one week. In case the withdrawal is announced at a later stage, the organisers will try to find another participant. In case nobody can be found, the organisers reserve the right to charge a withdrawal fee (25 Euro per Summit day). This does, of course, not refer to cases of illness confirmed by a doctor's certificate.

Rules and Regulations During the Summit

Due to reasons of liability and in respect of minors, smoking and the consumption of alcohol are prohibited. For reasons of liability and responsibility on the part of the Summit Team, it will only be possible for minors to separate from the »main group« in smaller units of at least three people. Participants who disturb or boycott the programme, or disregard the instructions of the workshop team, may be excluded from the EUSTORY Next Generation Summit 2018. The participant may be charged with any extra costs.

Any more questions? Please check the FAQ section on pp. 18-19!

I guarantee that my daughter/son will only take part in the EUSTORY Summit 2018 if s/he is free of any severe and/or contagious diseases. In case of an accident or illness during the Summit I leave it to the discretion of a doctor to initiate any necessary medical treatment. If possible, the advisors/Summit Team members and the doctor will always seek to consult the parent/legal guardian first before any steps are taken.

Contact address of parent/legal guardian during the EUSTORY Next Generation Summit 2018:

Name _____

Phone _____

Mobile Phone _____

Street _____

Town _____

Country _____

I acknowledge that the responsibility of the advisors/Summit Team members expires if my child leaves the premises without notification or if she/he acts against the instructions/rules. In case of severe insubordinate conduct my child can be sent home at my expense.
